Another Assassination Attempt:

Woman Radical Is Arrested

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A middle-age mother, checked by the Secret Service as a potential presidential assassin 24 hours earlier, fired a shot at President Ford Monday in the second attempt on his life in 17 days. The President was not injured.

The single shot exploded from across the street as Ford stepped from the St. Francis Hotel to a waiting limousine. The startled President buckled as two Secret Service agents shoved him to the sidewalk beside the car.

"Let's get him in," an agent shouted, and yanked open the door.

The agents pushed Ford into the car and tumbled atop him, pushing his head below the window.

"Let's get out of here," the agent screamed, and the car leaped from the curb toward the airport.

The bullet ricocheted among the crowd of 3,000 persons outside the hotel and hit a cab driver in the groin, injuring him slightly.

Police immediately plunged into the crowd and arrested Sara Jane Moore, 45, an FBI informer turned radical who was dressed in men's clothing.

Police said a disabled Marine veteran had knocked the weapon from Miss Moore's hand before she could fire a second shot.

Miss Moore was arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Owen Woodruff on a charge of attempting to kill the President. Bail was set at $500,000.

Secret Service Agent Gary Yauger — according to the FBI — said Miss Moore admitted to him that she fired the shot. Yauger said she told him she "was surprised that she had so much time."

U.S. Attorney James Browning asked Woodruff for permission to send her to the federal medical facility in Springfield, Mo., for a psychiatric evaluation.

This was the second attempt in 17 days on the President's life. In Sacramento, Calif., on Sept. 5, Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, 26, a member of the Charles Manson sex-and-drug cult, allegedly pointed a pistol at Ford but she was subdued by a Secret Service Agent. It did not fire.

San Francisco Police Inspector Gary Lemos said the ex-Marine, Oliver Sipple, 33, of San Francisco, "probably prevented a second shot from being fired." Lemos said there were still five live rounds in the chrome-plated, .38-caliber Smith & Wesson revolver. Miss Moore had been about 35-40 feet away from the President.

The gray-haired Miss Moore was picked up by police on an illegal handgun charge Sunday at about 2 p.m. They could not hold her because the gun was not loaded — even though there were 13 bullets in her purse and 100 in her car.

Secret Service agents at the time questioned Miss Moore but — according to an official Secret Service statement — "We assessed that she was not of sufficient protective interest to warrant surveillance during the President's visit."

The shooting occurred at 3:30 p.m. Ford was whisked away to the San Francisco airport, arriving at Air Force One 17 minutes later.

Arriving at the White House later, the President said the incident would not deter him from taking his presidency to the people.

"If we cannot have that opportunity of talking with one another, something has gone wrong in our society," the President said. "Under no circumstance will I, and I hope no others, capitulate to those that want to undercut what's all good in America."

FORD REACTS TO GUNSHOT FIRED BY SARA MOORE (insert)

Betty Was Unaware Of the Latest Incident

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Until she boarded Air Force One for the flight home from California, Betty Ford was unaware a bullet had been fired at the President Monday.

"Thank God she was a poor shot," the First Lady said of the assailant after Ford described the dramatic shooting attempt to his wife in the presidential cabin of the plane.

Mrs. Ford had decided to stay on at the Monterey, Calif., villa of Leonard K. Firestone, U.S. ambassador to Belgium, when her husband flew to San Francisco Monday for two final speaking appearances before ending a three-day visit to California.

The President, speeding in a motorcade to the airport after a shot was fired at him outside the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco, told aides he wanted his wife to know immediately he was safe.

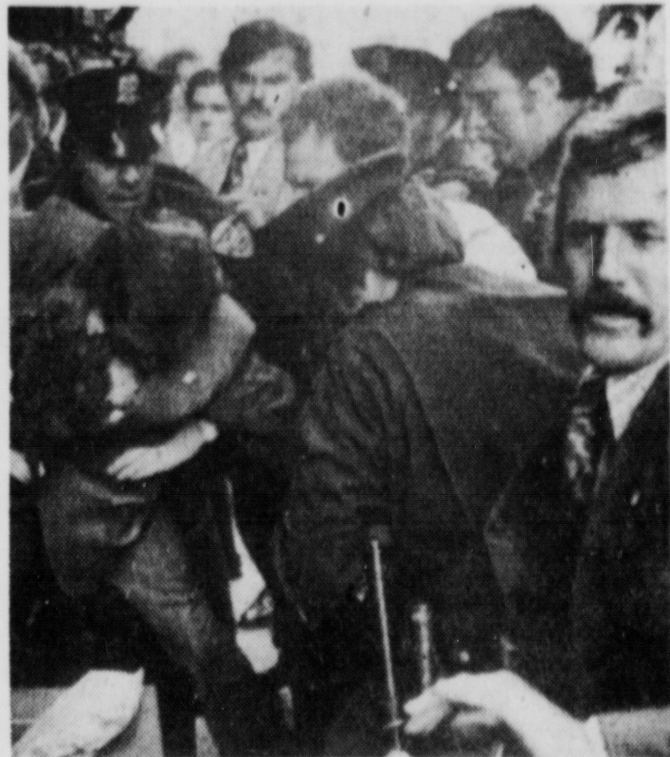

White House Chief of Staff Donald Rumsfeld said agent Bobby Coates, riding in the front seat of the limousine, tried to reach the First Lady. But she already was on a military plane flying from Monterey to join them at San Francisco International Airport.

Unaware of the attempt on his life, Mrs. Ford greeted her husband aboard the presidential jet with a warm, "Did you have a good time?"

Then he told her what had happened, and they both called the White House to talk to their children, Jack, 23, and Susan 18, who already had been informed of the incident.

Mrs. Ford stood by the President's side, smiling, when he boarded a helicopter to the White House after arriving at Andrews Air Force Base. Again she stood next to him when he spoke to reporters in the diplomatic reception room at the White House and pledged he would not "capitulate" to fear and would continue to meet the American people.

The First Lady took the shooting as philosophically as she had a previous attempt against Ford's life in Sacramento 17 days earlier, Press Secretary Sheila Rabb Weidenfeld said. After the earlier incident, Mrs. Ford had said she felt the threat of assassination was "something you had to live with."

SUSPECT IS CAPTURED

'The Thing To Do'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An ex-Marine disabled by shell fragments made a lunge that may have saved the President's life.

Before the assassination attempt, Oliver Sipple, 33, waited 2½ hours to see President Ford appear outside the St. Francis Hotel Monday, directly across the street.

"I started to applaud and then, right in front of me I saw the chrome revolver," he said. "I saw it pointed out there and I grabbed for it."

"I grabbed for the arm, to pull it down. I lunged and grabbed the woman's arm and the gun went off."

"A policeman told me I probably saved the President's life. He said that."

San Francisco patrolman Timothy Hettrich, 26, facing the crowd about seven feet away, also saw the .38-caliber pistol.

"I saw the gun come up, I heard the noise, I saw the smoke come from her hand, I was frozen for a second," he recalled.

"It seemed like an hour. I ran towards her. A hand (Sipple's) came from behind her and knocked her gun hand down."

"I grabbed the cylinder of the gun so she couldn't fire another round. I turned the gun towards her thumb. I twisted it towards her body."

Then, a Secret Service agent grabbed the pistol and Sara Moore was escorted away to be later charged with trying to murder the President.

Sipple, still shaken and chain smoking four hours after the incident, said he wasn't sure if he pulled the gun arm down before or after the shot.

"I don't even know why I did it, to be honest," he said. "It just seemed like the thing to do, I guess."

"I'm no hero or nothing. I never got any medals. Well, I was in the Marines 3½ years and now I'm retired on a full pension. I have some shrapnel."

"She was up front and I was right like, you know, behind her."

"Then she had that chrome thing and, well, I did it."

Split Second Action

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A puff of smoke. Then the cops.

The car engine was just starting up as President Ford came down the steps of the St. Francis hotel Monday. He was smiling, waving.

Suddenly, the unmistakable crack of gunfire split the crisp autumn air. For the second time in 17 days in California, a woman tried to kill the President of the United States.

For the second time in 17 days the Secret Service went into split second action.

The men closest to Gerald Ford again lived through the trauma, the danger, the possibility that the man they were devoted to could be assassinated.

One of those men never leaves the President's side. He is the defense insurance policy for the United States.

Capt. Lee Domina of the Marines was the President's military aide, the man who carries the secret codes Ford must use in case of nuclear war.

"I just heard a bang," he said. "I saw a puff of smoke and then I saw the cops converge."

Another was White House chief of staff Donald Rumsfeld, an old friend and crony. He was by Ford's side.

Along with two Secret Service agents, Rumsfeld shoved Ford into his bulletproof limousine. Another agent threw himself on top of the President.

Welfare Hike Expected

By Matt Spireng

KINGSTON Even if the number of persons on Ulster County's welfare rolls does not increase at all next year the welfare budget is going to increase, according to Social Services Commissioner Bernhardt S. Kramer.

How much will the welfare budget rise? According to Kramer, it is virtually impossible at this point in time to even give a "ball park" estimate.

This year's county welfare budget will probably top the 23 million mark before the year is out, an approximately 25 percent increase over last year.

"I don't think it will go up 25 percent again ...," Kramer told the Freeman. But it could rise 20 percent or more next year, he suggested.

Kramer explained that there will be two major factors that will cause the probably substantial increase in the county's social services budget next year: unemployment and inflation.

Many of the county's jobless currently collecting unemployment checks will lose their eligibility for those checks during the next several months and will be forced onto the welfare rolls, Kramer said. Eligibility for payments under the regular unemployment program currently lasts 65 weeks. Presently, Kramer estimated, some 25,000 persons are receiving welfare assistance of one form or another in Ulster County.

Also, continued inflation will drive up the cost of everything the social services department must purchase or pay for, also causing a budget increase, the social services commissioner said.

Noting that he is a taxpayer, too, and feels the continued pressure on his wallet of rising welfare costs, Kramer said the facts that money paid to welfare recipients is purchasing power, and is pumped back into the economy, and that the needy "must receive help" are usually ignored by many when considering the controversial topic of welfare.

Kramer also noted that his department's role is "not strictly handing out money to people," and that many other services are provided.

"The public assistance area gets all the publicity because that's where the big money is," he said.

Nevertheless, there is no doubt that a change in the current welfare laws must be made, Kramer suggested.

"I think a very close study should be made of the present welfare laws ...," he said, explaining that he believes the federal government must take on more of the burden of welfare costs.

Also, Kramer suggested, some change is needed in the current fiscal set-up which is a large part of the reason for the county's adopted welfare budget falling some $3.5 million short this year. He explained that while the county's fiscal year runs from January 1 to December 31, the state and federal fiscal years end at different times. Thus, while the county's budget is in effect, new laws are being passed on the state and federal level which mandate an increase in that budget.

"The cost due to any new laws requiring additional funding not provided for in the county budget should be picked up by the state and federal governments until the county's new fiscal year," Kramer suggested.

Speaking of the county legislature's action last week in approving additional funding for this year's medical assistance portion of the welfare budget, Kramer said he felt the legislature acted "in a very responsible way" and "saved the county a lot of money." Had the legislators not approved the additional appropriation of $737,500, the county could have been forced to make up the entire $3.5 million deficit for this year, rather than receiving 75 percent reimbursement from the state and federal governments.

"I think this county will cooperate with its fellow counties in working for welfare reform," Kramer said. "But at the same time, they are going to work within the law, because to do otherwise would saddle this county with additional costs."

Darling Raps Koenig on UR Double-Talk

KINGSTON Accusing Mayor Francis R. Koenig of "pre-election maneuvering with urban renewal properties," Republican mayoral candidate William K. Darling said today, "When I am elected mayor, I will actively seek development of urban renewal and other lands of the city of Kingston and not just issue press releases at election time."

"The present administration in City Hall has allowed lands in both uptown and downtown urban renewal to remain vacant for years. These lands are exempt from both city and school district taxes," Darling said.

"In brazen pre-election maneuvering, the Mayor, after three years of doing nothing with the land, suddenly realized that he is vulnerable politically for his inactivity. He then makes a recommendation that the five acre parcel of land lying between Hurley and Washington Avenues be subdivided."

"As if almost by magic, the very day the mayor announced his recommendation to the press, the Urban Renewal Agency he appointed met and accepted the mayor's concept of subdividing this valuable parcel. I am sure that all of the people in Kingston can see through this deceptive act of political flim-flam," said Darling.

"Both the mayor's news release and that of the urban renewal agency seek to create the impression that the subdivision of that valuable parcel was something new," asserted Darling.

"They fail to mention that several years ago the very same agency approved the subdivision of that land."

"A funeral home application made by several individuals including County Legislator James Gilpatrick was okayed by urban renewal," recalled the Republican candidate. "A public hearing on the application was even held."

Charging that the taxpayers have "been left holding the bag with the property lying vacant for three years and producing no revenue," Darling said, "this amounts to malfeasance in office when one considers the tax burden our residents are bearing."

"There is probably no more valuable parcel of real estate in Kingston because of its size and the amount of traffic that passes it each day. Further, this vacant land at the entrance to our city is an eyesore."

"Being mayor requires more than having one's picture taken, cutting ribbons. It means getting out from behind the desk and selling the city and its real estate. I personally have done it with real estate on Central Broadway."

"I am sure the people of Kingston will show their disgust with the tax-free ride of this parcel for years, while their own property taxes have increased. The attempt to then twist the deplorable facts of inactivity into an election headline is typical of an administration that has remained in office too long," concluded Darling.

Police Commission Revealed

By Carl Graham

ROSENDALE

Mayor Rivo Puusemp and members of the Rosendale Village Board revealed Monday night details of a proposed three-member commission to oversee police affairs in the village.

A sparse audience showed up at the village clerk's office for the informational meeting, called to give board members input from village residents about the plan. Both supporters and opponents of the commission idea had their say on the idea of the commission serving as an intermediate step between the board and the police department headed by Chief Kenneth Gordon.

Puusemp said the village needs a group not tied down by other matters to take an objective look at the police department and to make recommendations to the village board for its conduct. The commission also could serve as a long-range planning group for police affairs. His call for a commission does not imply any criticism of Gordon or his department, the mayor emphasized.

As outlined by Puusemp, the commission would consist of three non-paid members. One of its first charges would be to make recommendations about what its own functions and powers should be. Its principal responsibilities would be to monitor day-to-day police department operation and to serve as its liaison with the village board.

Trustee Barbara DeStefano emphasized that the commission would not take over or run the police department, but would serve in an advisory capacity, with final responsibility remaining with the village board, which now serves as the police commission.

She also said that "In no way would the commissioners have any police powers."

Puusemp said that running the village is a complex task that keeps trustees meeting several nights a week on other matters. He said they did not have the time to devote to detailed supervision of police matters.

Several persons said they felt that the commission should have more powers than proposed initially by the board, but Puusemp said he preferred to wait and let the commission make recommendations about its own functions and limitations before giving away any village board powers.

Discussion wandered off to functions of the police department itself, with several persons saying that a probationary member of the department was riding on patrol car duty without an identity card or powers of arrest.

"This is the very reason why we need a police commission," Puusemp replied, promising to check into the situation at once.

There were no direct references to several recent incidents in the village that had drawn fire from an ad hoc citizens' group, but Puusemp cut off attempts to criticize Gordon, saying they were making allegations about someone who was not there to defend himself. Ms. DeStefano said that "this is not the first (village) board to put its confidence in Chief Gordon."

Puusemp said that the job of running the village properly doesn't leave trustees enough time to devote to proper supervision of police affairs. Which is where a separate commission comes in, he said.

Bell, Klein Mentioned for Post

By Lynn Mulvaney

KINGSTON With the Democratic and Republican judicial conventions one and two days away and two supreme court judge's posts to be filled in the Third Judicial District in November, there is a possibility that local party leaders will carry the names of City Corporation Counsel Aaron Klein, a Democrat and former GOP Assemblyman H. Clark Bell to their respective conventions. County Democratic Chairman Harold Brown said that the Democrats throughout the seven county district are expected to support Judge Milton Levine for one of the posts. Daniel Pryor, an assistant to Supreme Court Justice William Murray in Albany is also prominently mentioned. Levine was given an interim supreme court judgeship to fill the vacancy created when Justice Lawrence A. Cooke of Monticello was elevated to a higher court earlier this year. However, Brown indicated the possibility exists that the Ulster Democrats may support Klein, a former Kingston city judge for the other post, vacated by the death of Ulster County Supreme Court Justice Louis G. Bruhn.

Meanwhile, Ulster Republicans have reportedly asked Bell if he is interested in one of the two posts. He indicated he would give them an answer by tonight. It is assumed that because Bell is well-known in the district, his chances of election in November would be good. But, the question remains whether or not he is interested.

The district GOP is also said to favor Roger Miner of Hudson in Columbia County and J. Ellis Staley of Albany County who is presently filling Judge Bruhn's post on an interim basis.

The judgeships in question are for 14-year terms with an annual salary of $49,000.

Although it was Ulster and Sullivan counties which lost the two judge's posts, Columbia County is the only one of the seven counties without a supreme court justice.

Albany has five, Rensselaer has four, Sullivan two, and Schoharie, Greene and Ulster each have one.

The Democrats meet in convention Wednesday and the GOP on Thursday.

'Showdown' In Saugerties

By Tim Schuster

SAUGERTIES In the Old West they called it a showdown.

The process these days is filtered through lawyers and bureaucracy, but a showdown will occur Thursday night between the Saugerties Teachers' Association and the Saugerties Board of Education on a contract dispute.

William Sisler, STA president, wouldn't say he didn't like the PERB fact-finder's report received this week, but he wouldn't say he liked it either.

He did say that there were "some areas" he felt could be resolved by further negotiations with the board. Upon questioning, it appeared that one was the dismissal clause. Wordings submitted by both the board and the STA were amalgamated into an alternate offering on criteria for review.

Sisler gave no opinion on the salary offerings in the two-year recommended contract. Step one in the salary schedule would receive an $825 increment the first year, and $456 the second year if fact-finder Robert Helfrich had his way. And a $100 bonus catch-up would be distributed to each teacher not in line for an increment.

A recommendation for district participation in a dental plan was also included.

The teachers had asked for some adjustment at the top of the salary scale for long term teachers with any years seniority. This was rejected by Helfrich.

The base first year pay for a Saugerties teacher is $8,600. This amount has increased at a rate of $400 a year for the past three years under the old contract, with all steps in the schedule also impacted.

Helfrich, who was formally objected to by the STA, noted in his report: "There are no hard and fast answers in this situation, but pattern of possible settlement do emerge."

Sisler said today that the STA just wants to continue negotiations, which have lasted nine months.

The STA today announced it had petitioned PERB for the services of a "super conciliator," who should be appointed within the week. His job would be to "stick with the parties until a settlement is reached."

The meeting at 7:30 p.m., Thursday in the high school auditorium is specified under the Taylor Law. Daniel Lee, district superintendent, said board president Robert Francello will then "make available information to residents regarding the board's position."

Sisler said, "The teachers plan to be there to answer questions."

Meanwhile, the marching demonstrations continue by teachers at various schools in the district. They were out in the rain earlier today at the high school.

Todd: 'Man in the Middle'

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON School Board President Ward D. Todd says he's the man in the middle—and on the griddle—in the recently revived "new high school issue," in effect catching it from both sides.

A group collectively calling itself the Anti-High School Quartet—Richard Skala, Josephine McKean, Fred Hofbauer and Ronald Meyer—is issued a press release Monday casting aspersions on Todd's stated opposition to the new high school, suggesting that his public statements and his voting record suffered by comparison.

Todd has said he is opposed to the high school—based on the election returns in May where upwards of 7,000 persons clearly showed their opposition—but the quartet says that he voted against dropping condemnation procedures for land acquisition for the new school and that he blocked the election (by the board) for a replacement for John Devine when he resigned after only 22 days on the board in July.

Todd says now that rather than being an anti-high school convert after the May elections, he was always opposed to it.

"There have been two instances when I voted for something that resembled support of the high school," he told the Freeman today.

"One was the operating plan that Jim Owens presented about a year ago, the second was the condemnation which they mentioned." Todd's mention of an operating plan referred to a series of projections and studies compiled by former School Board member James T. Owens.

"I've never been in favor of it," Todd said. "I've been chastised by board members in favor when I went out and got new figures on population projection."

The school board president agrees with his detractors that he blocked appointment on some of their candidates but said that in some cases he felt the candidates the incumbents were offering were better qualified. He also says he didn't like the idea of prospective candidates being grilled by the quartet and having to agree to a lengthy list of quartet positions in order to win their approval.

But Todd says the thing that bothers him most is that statements by the quartet may have caused some public doubt as to his veracity.

"The really disappointing thing is that you hope people will take your word. I've stated my position on the high school and I'll stick to it."

The special election to fill Devine's almost full five-year term is set for Oct. 1.

Shandaken Board Plans Water Main

PHOENICIA

Rather than wait two years or more for County Bridge No. 191 to be rebuilt, the Shandaken Town Board has decided to lay a permanent water main under the Esopus Creek to serve families whose water was cut off when the bridge collapsed early this year.

The estimated price-tag for the project is $22,000. The old water line was suspended from the bridge, but when an oversized rental truck rammed the bridge's support beams on Feb. 27, the span collapsed and the water line was severed. A temporary plastic line has since been installed.

The temporary three-inch line, according to Town of Shandaken Supervisor Raymond Dunn, doesn't provide adequate water pressure for the fire hydrants on the south side of the creek. In addition, residents serviced by the temporary line have been told by the Ulster County Health Department that they should boil all their drinking water to guard against possible contamination.

Dunn said these were the two major considerations in the decision to immediately replace the line. The Ulster County Legislature has appropriated funds to rebuild the bridge, but the project, it is thought, would take at least two years to complete.

The permanent line, said Dunn, would be six inches, which he said would provide adequate pressure and supply for the affected residents.

The cost will be borne by the Phoenicia Water District, although attempts will be made to recover some of the money through insurance claims against the driver of the truck.

Dunn said he expects that it will take two to three weeks to draw up the necessary plans and specifications for the project, and to advertise and award the contract. "We hope to start before the frost sets in," he commented.

Dunn said approval to perform the construction work in the bed of the Esopus Creek has already been obtained from the Department of Environmental Conservation; En Con personnel will be on hand during construction to insure that disruption of aquatic life in the stream is kept to a minimum.

The decision to move ahead immediately with the replacement project was made at a special meeting of the town board Saturday in Phoenicia.

Potatoes: The Old Stand-By

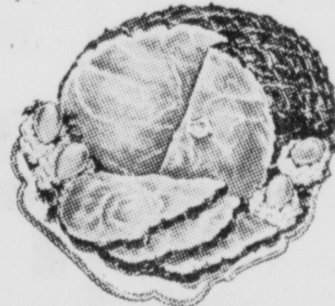

Potatoes are available in three basic varieties; new potatoes for boiling, general purpose potatoes, and baking potatoes. They may be long, round, or somewhere in between and may be a "white", "red", or "Russet" color classification. To obtain quality potatoes, which will last longest at home, look for smooth, firm, well-shaped varieties with few or no eyes. Avoid potatoes with sprouts or green spots. Green spots are caused by exposure to natural or artificial light and give the vegetable a bitter flavor.

Quality doesn't end in the selection. Potatoes bruise easily, so handle them carefully at home. Proper storage is the key to keeping general purpose and baking potatoes several months after purchase and "new" potatoes for several weeks. Since dampness increases the rate of decay, store them unwashed in a cool, dark well-ventilated area.

News for the diet-conscious! One medium-sized potato contains less than 100 calories.

Fourth Attempt

Almost three weeks since the opening of the 1975-76 school season, and on the fourth attempt to get a budget approved, voters in the Ellenville School District finally passed one.

Thus, four services previously rejected on three other occasions, will be restored to district students. The turnout at the polls was unusually high and Ellenville citizens seemed to have been aroused sufficiently enough to restore busing, athletics, cafeteria services and pupils' books and supplies to the budget.

The biggest winner was busing. A total of 1,407 residents voted in favor of restoring busing services to the district's children and only 667 voted against. This $86,250 item in the budget was needed and its success can be traced to the walkathon staged by the parents.

The $115,950 account for students' books and supplies passed by a 1,253 to 791 margin. This means that students will not have to purchase the needed everyday books used in the classrooms.

Football and the other sports as well will be beneficiaries of the $30,866 passed by a small margin of 1,097 to 915. And cafeteria services passed by 1,080 to 952. This food item will cost $27,790 for the coming year.

School board members and officials of the school district should be commended for getting the vote out on the fourth attempt at passing a budget.

Ending Pollution

Last week at the annual meeting of the New York State Conservation Council in Ithaca, Environmental Conservation Commissioner Ogden Reid announced a plan to create 70 new water sampling stations along major waterways to increase anti-pollution measures.

Among the points he made were that aquatic plants and marsh grasses will be used in the Hudson River from Glens Falls to Troy to help clear it of dangerous industrial chemical pollution; lime will be dumped into Adirondack lakes suffering from excess acidity; new protection measures will be taken to shelter fish hatcheries and fish spawning grounds, and new fish disease control steps will be taken.

The commissioner is on the right path. Ending pollution of our waterways is not something that can be done in a night, in a week, in a month or even in a year.

New York State has made some progress toward that goal. A great deal remains to be done and Commissioner Reid is taking the bull by the horns. It's a good start.

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON—Members of Congress, newly blessed with a salary boost and already loaded with fringe benefits, have for years been chiseling the Navy for free dental care.

The roster of legislators illegally getting root-canal work, deluxe fillings, dental surgery and even new plates reads like the leadership pages of the Congressional Directory.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., Senator Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., and Senator Norris Cotton, R-N.H., are only a few of the solons whose smiles reflect free custom care at the top-notch Navy Yard clinic.

Former Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Robert Finch, who might have gotten bootleg care from his own departmental dentists, chose instead to patronize the Navy. Even prominent foreign diplomats were sneaked into the clinic.

Navy regulations, and human decency, require dentists to take care of patients in a true emergency, such appears to be the case when Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., went to the clinic after he broke his tooth on a prune pit in a Senate restaurant.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., also feels he comes under the emergency rule because he needed a filling replaced and wasn't scheduled to see his regular dentist in Chicago for a month.

Rep. L.H. Fountain, D-N.C., says his treatment for a cracked tooth a few days ago was also an "emergency situation."

But what of Mike Mansfield, usually as iusture as his spare frame with the taxpayers money? After treatment of an abscessed tooth, he has now become a repeat patient of the Navy Yard's nationally known dentist, Capt. Michael Brenyo.

Sen. William Hathaway, D-Me., is also a frequent patient and has been treated for gum surgery and root-canal work by the solicitous Navy dentists.

Hatfield underwent even more extensive work. Originally he dropped in at the clinic for "swelling of the mouth." But over a period of several years, Brenyo has done much of Hatfield's dental work, including a costly root canal.

House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., insists his visits to the clinic were for "minor dental work." Besides his retired military pay status may make the work legal. Senator Cotton, we have learned, had a dental plate repaired and reportedly had a new one made. And Rep. Edward Boland, D-Mass., has had extensive gum invigoration work.

To their credit, all the prominent patients acknowledged their visits. Few were as frank as Finch, a former chief aide to Richard Nixon. Not only did he go, Finch said, but he "saw a number of Congressmen while I was down there."

Dental experts no longer in the clinic have fumed openly about the illegal work, but our reporter Gary Cohn visited the clinic and found anything by an "open wide" policy.

Commanding officer Stewart Elder, who has personally greeted such visitors as Hatfield, successfully dodged all our queries. When Cohn called him at home, the Navy captain refused even to speak to him.

Nevertheless, we have discovered that Elder justified the improper treatment of high government figures by telling his colleagues it would help the clinic at budget time.

Footnote: Several of the patients aid they were unaware they were doing anything wrong. Yet even some of the "emergency" care is of dubious legality. We asked Capt. Brenyo whether we, for example, could get a filling on an emergency basis. "No way," he sputtered.

SPY TRAP—Despite warming relations between Cuba and the U.S., the relentless espionage game goes on. One of Fidel Castro's intelligence agents sought to enlist a Cuban residing in the U.S.

As it happened, the would-be enlistee was already a U.S. intelligence informant and turned over his instructions to American agents. We have obtained a copy of this intriguing spy "primer."

"The method (of communication) is to write in an invisible form," begins the note. A simple mix of half fresh lemon juice and half water is recommended.

The spy is instructed to write a "cover" letter "with a ball point pen (do not use pencil or fountain pen.)" The cover letter should be dull enough to get by any censors or counterspies, but logical enough not to raise suspicions, the spy mini-manual says. On the back of the "cover" letter, the invisible ink in pened in with "a small stick like the ones used for throat examinations. Sharpen it (but) do not wet the stick too much."

To prevent a "fingerprint" from the heel of the hand which one puts on a letter when writing, "arrange on top of the paper...a blank sheet." The folded final letter must be handled delicately or "you will remove the invisible ink." It was to be sent to a room on 21st Street in Havana, using a false address.

Finally, when Havana sends the next instructions, also in invisible ink, the spy is "to pass a hot iron on the white part (of the paper.)" The Havana agent enclosed a cash payment for his new "recruit," with a grim if subtle warning as a "P.S." "I forgot to tell you," it says "I have been with your family and all, including the old lady, are fine."

On The Right

Mrs. Thatcher Comes to Town

By William F. Buckley

Mrs. Thatcher's first television appearance was on an hour-long program. The host warned his audience that Mrs. Thatcher, leader of the opposition in Great Britain, is not the kind of person Americans associate with the women's liberation movement. "If she does become Prime Minister," he said, "she will somehow leave the women's liberation movement with an unconsummated sense of mission, unless in presenting her credentials to the Queen she is caught streaking into Palace."

All this Mrs. Thatcher bore bravely, but not for very long. When the time came for the panel of questioners to interrogate her, the very first question, posed by a highly skilled young polemicist of the American left, was square on the theme of her sex. "Isn't it a fact, Mrs. Thatcher, that you, a woman, were named head of the opposition party only because you are a hidebound Tory and therefore sharply distinguishable from a political radical?"

For once the lady was displeased. She has a way of maintaining a smile even in moments of exaggerated impatience (I think that this is the principal muscular division between the politicians and the rest of us). "Do you mind," she said sweetly, the acid forming in her breath, "if I tell you that I consider that question entirely trivial? In Great Britain we do not ask the sex of a political figure. We seek only to vote for the best qualified person."

If that is the case, the host intervened, mustn't we draw dismal conclusions about the competence of British woman — since in fact so few of them have positions of political, or for that matter commercial, power? Mrs. Thatcher has 25 years of polemical experience to draw on, and she deflected the question nicely, in a patient, grandmotherly tone. "You see," she said, "in Great Britain traditionally the pre-occupations of the woman have been with the family. For that reason, very few of them have presented themselves to the public. That is now changing . . ."

She is quite frank that she desires all that to change very fast indeed. Mrs. Thatcher's appetite to take power in Great Britain is no doubt in part her entirely natural appetite to exercise power, but she convinced a lot of hoary New Yorkers that her enthusiasm for her approach to the revival of Great Britain is entirely genuine. One has the feeling that as Prime Minister she would see every percentage rise in the gross national product, and every percentage drop in the rate of inflation, with the kind of personal excitement a horse-trainer would feel on prying seconds off a yearling's workout.

There was some muttering, after one occasion, that her replies had been a little textbookish: the overweening bureaucracy, the disappearance of the incentive factor, the demoralization brought on by inflation, the impacted confusion of socialist policies — but the impatience was markedly different from what it might have been in another season in America, inasmuch as Mrs. Thatcher was speaking, for the most part, to residents of a city strangled by bureaucracy and welfarism, demoralized by high taxes and inflation, in which classical, atavistic anxieties stir.

I do not doubt that if in the Sin Center district of Times Square a wily opportunist were to set up a peep show at which the viewer could ogle candid pictures of ten percent maximum taxation forms, alarm clocks summoning unemployed welfare recipients to work cleaning Cite city streets, and Charles Manson sitting on an electric chair, you might come upon, suitably disguised inserting quarter after quarter into the slots, Eric Sevareid, and Walter Cronkite, and John Chancellor, to name only a few of the titans of American communications who sat and listened to Mrs. Thatcher reading to them from the Baltimore catechism without apparent resentment.

She left town after four days in a tough and cynical city, as a Presence. As a plausible prime minister of the mother of parliaments, and isn't that, as one meditates on it, a happy ambition for an English mother?

Inside Report

Israel's Folly . . . The Pershing Missile

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON—The folly of Israel overloading its Egyptian Sinai agreement with the politically-charged matter of the Pershing missile is now clear from the fact the assembly line for the 450-mile ground-to-ground U.S. missile has been closed down for three months and reopening it would cost far more than the missile battalion Israel wants.

Indeed, as of today no prospect exists that the Martin-Marietta plant in Orlando, Fla., will be reopened. That means Israel cannot possibly get the missile because the U.S. Army would have to strip its own limited supplies.

The Army has three battalions of the nuclear-tipped missile on operational duty in West Germany with NATO forces. The fourth and last battalion is a training unit based in the U.S.

High Pentagon officials say there is "no way" for the Army to give up even a single battery (9 missiles) to Israel from the active inventory. The Army is still smarting over Israeli pull-downs of high-quality U.S. weapons from the NATO operational inventory during the 1973 war.

Defense officials, shocked that the matter of conventionally-armed Pershing missiles became the subject of a secret deal between the U.S. and Israel, were no less surprised when Israeli defense secretary Shimon Peres claimed Israel needed the Pershing to balance the Arabs' SCUD missile.

Peres told a National Press Club audience Wednesday that the Soviet-built SCUD had a range similar to the Pershing. Pentagon officials place the SCUD's range at between 50 and 175 miles, one-third the Pershing's range.

VENDETTA POLITICS

President Ford's unexpected nomination of Thomas Kleppe as Secretary of Interior, baffling to most White House staffers, can be traced to a personal vendetta of Secretary of Commerce Rogers Morton's.

Behind the scenes, Morton strongly opposed Interior Department solicitor Kent Frizzell's bid to head the department and carried his fight to Donald Rumsfeld, presidential chief of staff, and on up to the President. With no logical alternative, the White House turned to Kleppe, Small Business administrator since losing a 1970 Senate race in North Dakota. Ex-House members Kleppe, Morton, Rumsfeld and Mr. Ford himself are all members of the CCC — the Congressional Cronies Club — which now dominates the government.

Kleppe has no other apparent qualifications. "I wouldn't call it a particularly distinguished appointment," says one presidential staffer adding that Kleppe's greatest claim to fame is having shot a hole-in-one and bowled a 300 game. More seriously, a senior Ford aide said Kleppe's real asset is having neither a past record nor strong views on environmental questions.

In contrast, Frizzell has been impressive during two stints as acting Interior Secretary. He was strongly supported by Western Republican Senators — including Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon. More liberal and more conservationist than his fellow Western Republicans, Hatfield found himself satisfied with Frizzell's environmental positions.

But Frizzell had clashed with Morton on several occasions while Morton was Interior Secretary — especially after Congress passed its first strip-mining control bill last December. While Morton unsuccessfully urged the President to sign the bill, Frizzell encouraged the veto.

With Frizzell fitting the job so well, many Republican Senators have concluded that the old internecine intrigues of the Nixon White House persist — though in less malevolent form — at the Ford White House.

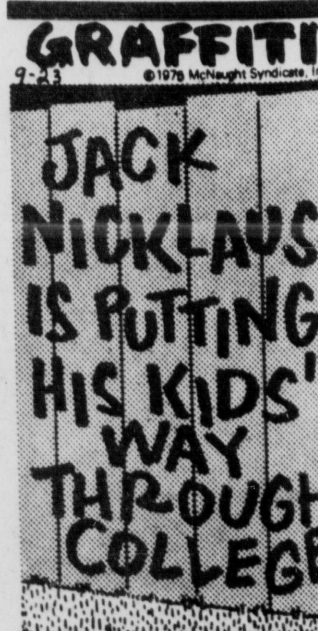

HELP FOR SCOOP

Sen. Henry M. Jackson's presidential campaign will receive a major boost in California next week from old pro Jesse Unruh, a key supporter there of the Kennedy brothers who is still remembered as a floor leader for the anti-Vietnam peace flank at the 1968 Democratic national convention.

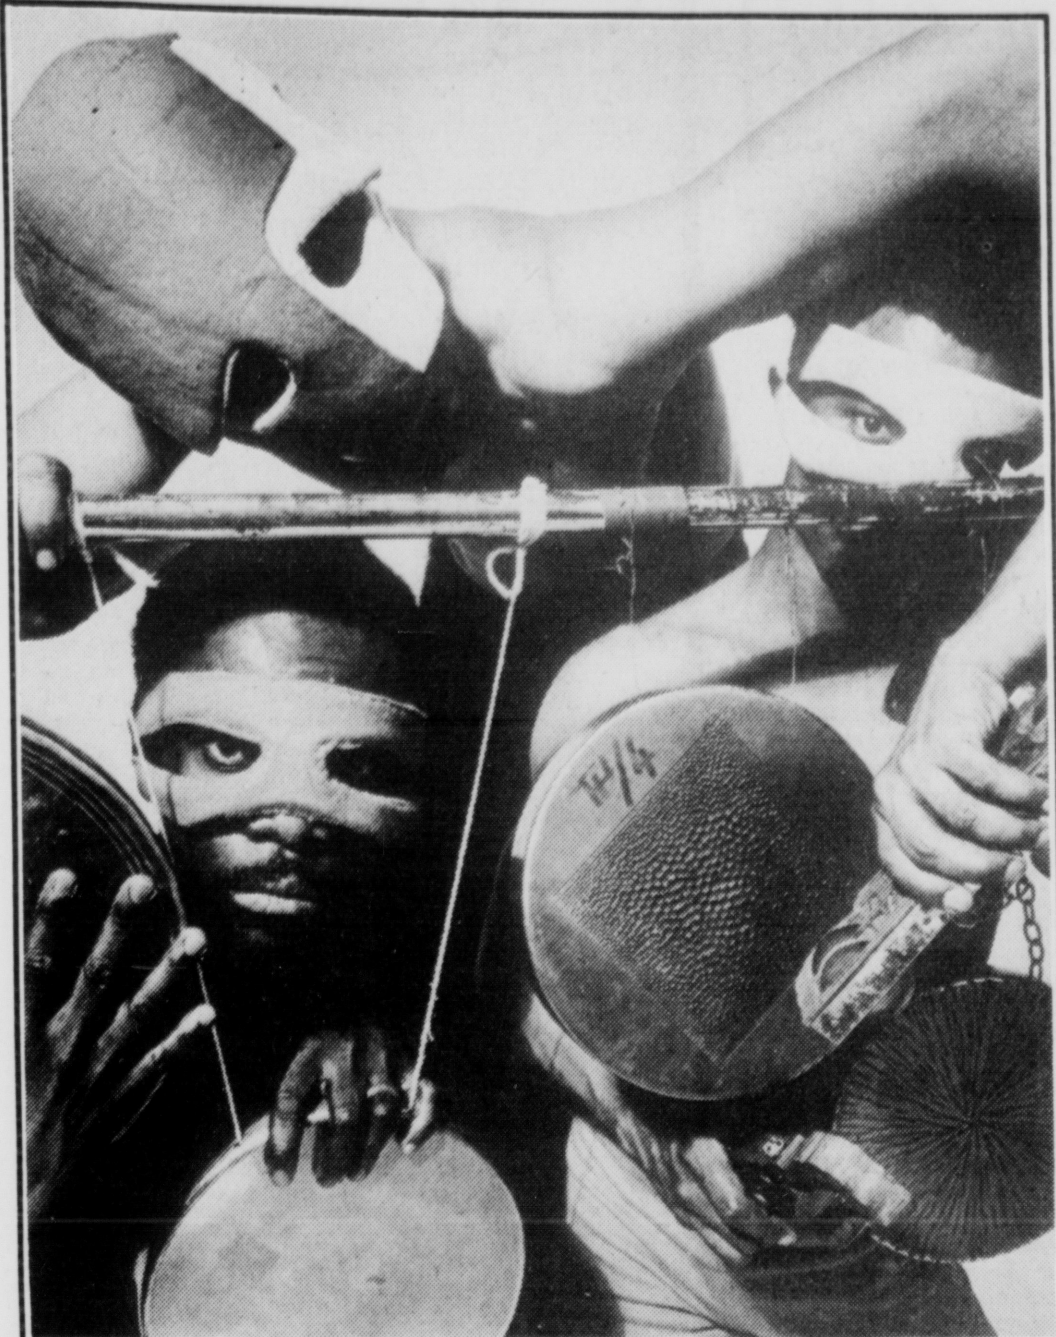

Unruh, elected state treasurer last year, is certainly not the power he was during eight years as speaker of the State Assembly. Nevertheless, as campaign manager for Jackson, Unruh brings him significant expertise and prestige. Unruh was variously state campaign manager for John F. Kennedy, Lyndon B. Johnson and Robert F. Kennedy between 1960 and 1968 and was nominee for governor in 1970.

Besides his knowledge of California, Unruh could give Jackson a long-desired link with the Kennedy political tradition. Unruh first met Jackson in the 1960 campaign, when Jackson was Bobby Kennedy's first choice to be his brother's running-mate, according to Unruh. Except for Vietnam, says Unruh, Jackson has been right on all the issues in the intervening 16 years.

A footnote: Before deciding to back Jackson, Unruh turned down a personal request for support from Kennedy brother-in-law Sargent Shriver, who represented himself to Unruh as a political legatee of the Kennedys.

LIFE TODAY

Masked dancers in "Rhythm Ritual," as performed by the Rod Rodgers Dance Company at Woodstock Playhouse recently.

African Culture Interpreted in Dance 'Bravos' for Rod Rodgers Group

By Tobie Geertsema

WOODSTOCK

Modern dance and modern-dance companies are changing in many ways. And one of the best and most interesting companies to be seen here in several seasons turned up at the Woodstock Playhouse on a recent evening.

The Rod Rodgers Dance Company, through choreographer Rodgers, has often taken the lead in interpreting African culture through dance. Ethnically, these dances are supremely fascinating. Artistically, they are presented with none of the unattractive slickness sometimes seen in larger groups supposedly dedicated to a similar purpose.

Class consciousness is certainly a part of the troupe's performance, but—as presented by this integrated company of six black and three white dancers—it more often takes the form of expressions of black soul and black aspirations than of strident social and racial commentaries.

There is no question that the Rod Rodgers Dance Company, though young, is exceptionally talented and imaginative.

For this viewer, the highlight of their Woodstock concert was "Love Flower," a romantic duet performed by Rod Rodgers and Tamara Guillebeaux to music by Oliver Nelson, Nick Ashford and Valerie Simpson. The exquisite gracefulness of Miss Guillebeaux and the slow, gentle power of Rodgers' dancing combined for a joyousness in teamwork that subtly defined the exposition of two people in love. The audience also demonstrated an obvious zest for this work, exhibiting its enthusiastic approval with bravos and sustained applause.

We also liked "Tangents," a dance that impressed for its fluidity. Performed by Rodgers, who is a big man with rounded muscles, and Elaine Anderson and Leslie Innis (both small, with pale blonde hair and pretty faces), it has the three dancers striking and wishing thin sticks. This not only provides fine musical accompaniment in unusual sounds, but the action of bringing the sticks together adds to the dance movements and gives an unexpected beauty to the bending and unbending of the bodies of the dancers.

More boldly designed were "Rhythm Ritual" and "Intervals," both of which utilized the talents of the entire company. In "Ritual," choreographer-director Rodgers does not dance, but his drumming and percussion work, staged in view of the audience, lends power to an imaginative performance. Again, some dancers swish thin sticks; others accompany their movements with bells. The combination of dance steps, instruments, and masks worn by some dancers gives a total African feeling to the number, which is not—however—danced in an all-encompassing African style.

While one is caught up in the taut punctuations of "Rhythm Ritual," it is the vast scope of movement that impresses in "Intervals." Rodgers designed this dance to be viewed in the round, a viewing that was not possible from an orchestra seat in the Playhouse. Still, one could appreciate the interplay between groups of partners, working in pairs and in counterpoint to each other. But one could only imagine the "living sculptural concept" Rodgers means it to be—and hope that, someday, one might be able to see it from all sides.

Also on the program was "Shout!," a solo dance performed by Thomas Pincock to music by Donny Hathaway. An affirmative tribute to being young and black, it seemed to us almost a pantomime set to music—but an elastic pantomime of juve, joy and hope. The remaining dance, "Sweet Blues," performed by Shirley Rushing and Bill Chaison was all bittersweet romance—sometimes danced with a subtle coolness and, at other times, with a sensuous flow.

There is no question that the Rod Rodgers Dance Company, though young, is exceptionally talented and imaginative...and no question that it played to a highly appreciative audience at the Woodstock Playhouse, which will be continuing its newly initiated fall programming well into October.

Bicycle Workshop At Lake Minnewaska

It was bicycle time one recent weekend at the Lake Minnewaska Mountain House.

For those two days the county resort hosted a Bicycle Workshop featuring morning classes, a ride for lunch, afternoon tours throughout the area, on bikes, of course; and other sessions including bicycle health and safety, correct riding techniques and bicycle camping.

On Sunday, the course wound up with topics including equipment, riding techniques, No. 2 and maintenance and repair.

Susan S. Phillips, director of the event for the Lake Minnewaska Mountain House, reports an interesting weekend and an enjoyable one for those who participated.

Step-kids Go Or He Will

DEAR ABBY: I was a divorcee with six children for nine years. Then I married a man who is 10 years my junior. My two youngest children made their home with us. (All of the others were on their own.)

The last two are now 17 and 18 and neither is sufficiently mature to leave home. Maybe it's my fault for not pushing them hard enough, but the fact remains that they still need me.

My husband has issued an ultimatum: "Either your kids go or I do. I am tired of supporting them!"

Abby, my love for this man is indescribable, but I can't send my children away.

How much do I owe my husband? My children? myself?

TORN APART

DEAR TORN: In my opinion, a man who would give his wife such an ultimatum knows that she will choose her children — which is what I think he really wants.

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 and my boyfriend is 22. We've gone together for a year. He lives 30 miles from my home and drives over to be with me about four times a week.

He says he loves me, but we sure do fight a lot. And every time we have a fight, he asks me to give him all the presents that he gave me, plus a check to cover the expenses of gas for all the trips he made to see me.

Do you think we should take a vacation from each other for a while?

He wants to marry me, but I'm not sure we can get along with each other. If we do break up, should I return his gifts plus the money for his gas?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: A "vacation" from each other is a splendid idea. Date others and hope that he grows up in the meantime. If you break up, return his gifts and tell him the gas was on him.

DEAR ABBY: This is trivial, I suppose, but I need a "professional" answer and don't know where else to turn. I hope you can help me.

A baby was born illegitimately in our family, and he was given up for adoption when he was one-week-old. The natural grandmother insists on counting this child as her "grandchild." She even included him in a family obituary!

I think she is wrong. Your comments, please. Thank you.

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: A child given up for adoption assumes the name of his adoptive parents and becomes a legal part of THEIR family. Of course the memory of the child may linger on in the mind of the natural grandparents, but he is no longer legally part of that family.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A. Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope, please.

Celebration

Fabled Grasmere, one of the Hudson Valley's most beautiful and historic mansions, will be the site for the opening of a three-day celebration in Northern Dutchess County marking the Gen. Montgomery Memorial Observance. An afternoon in Grasmere, located south of Rhinebeck, is set for Sunday, Sept. 28, at 2:30 p.m. featuring a concert on the lawn by Nicky Seeger and Company, followed by a Revolutionary Military demonstration by Col. Lamb's Regiment. On Tuesday, Sept. 30, events will start at 2 p.m. and continue until the closing spectacle at 8 p.m. featuring a pageant including a mock battle with the American Brigade. Grasmere may be reached by proceeding south out of Rhinebeck on Route 9 to Mill Road. Grasmere is located less than a quarter of a mile in on Mill Road.

Speaker for CDA Banquet

Mrs. Emma Sangaline was named chairperson of the annual banquet of Catholic Daughters of America, Court Santa Maria No. 164. Announcement was made at the group's first meeting of the season held earlier this month at Knights of Columbus hall in Kingston.

The banquet is scheduled for October 2 at Walnut Grove in Kingston. Speaker for the occasion will be the Rev. Edward I. Farrelly, pastor of St. Mary of the Snow Church in Saugerties. A musical program is also planned.

Father Farrelly is well known in the local area, having served St. Mary's parish in Kingston for 26 years. While in Kingston, he was active in firemanic organizations, hospital work and ecumenical endeavors.

Reservations for the banquet may be made with Mrs. Martha O'Leary.

A message was received from the Xavier Society for the Blind, praising the excellent work the committee, headed by Catherine Haines, is doing in typing large print books for the visually handicapped.

Plans are underway to accept a large number of candidates for membership in the Court at the next meeting.

The Rev. Msgr. Thomas Mullins, chaplain celebrated Mass prior to the meeting. He spoke briefly on the September 14 canonization of Elizabeth Ann Seton as America's first saint. St. Elizabeth Ann Seton, a native New Yorker, socialite, wife, mother, widow, nurse, teacher, and foundress of a religious order, is credited with founding the Catholic School System in this country.

Lynn Doing His Best

By UPI

As most racing buffs know, even though one of your prize couplings is scratched, you can still win with the other half of the entry.

So it is with the Boston Red Sox. The Red Sox, fighting to win the American League's East Division pennant, lost one of their prize young rookies, Jim Rice, for the remainder of the season Sunday because of a broken hand. But the other half of that dynamic rookie duo, Fred Lynn, is doing his best to see that the Red Sox maintain their position atop the AL East during the final week of the season.

Lynn, the AL's second leading hitter, rapped out three hits, including a record-setting 46th double, scored twice and drove in a pair of runs Monday night to spark the Red Sox to a 6-4 triumph over the New York Yankees.

The victory boosted Boston's lead to four games over the idle Baltimore Orioles and reduced their magic number to four for clinching the division title.

Lynn, who drove home the Red Sox' first run with a sacrifice fly in the second inning, touched off a three-run sixth inning rally with his run-scoring double and also singled and scored a run in the eighth. His double broke the record for most two-base hits by a rookie in one season.

"Setting records is okay," said Lynn, "but they're things you think of after the season and you get recognition. Winning makes it much more pleasant."

"I'm just trying to win. Everything else is secondary. I get excited about the games, of course. It's the different situations which excite you and it is gratifying to come through in them."

Denny Doyle, Rick Wise and newly-acquired Deron Johnson also contributed heavily to the Red Sox victory. Doyle had three singles and drove in three runs, Wise won his 19th game with seven innings of five-hit pitching and Johnson, obtained Sunday to help provide some right-handed power in Rice's absence, had three singles, scored once and drove in a run.

Thurman Munson had a two-run homer for the Yankees and reached the 100 RBI plateau for the first time in his career.

In other AL games, Minnesota topped Oakland 2-1, Kansas City nipped Texas 2-1, Cleveland edged Milwaukee 7-6 and California blanked Chicago 3-0 in 16 innings.

Twins 2, A's 1

Eddie Bane, Bill Campbell and Tom Burgmeier prevented Oakland from clinching a fifth straight AL West Division title by pitching Minnesota to victory. Bane scattered seven hits in eight innings to gain his second win in three decisions since being recalled from the minors. Ken Holtzman allowed only three hits in a route-going performance for the A's.

Royals 2, Rangers 1

Tony Solaita doubled home the tying run and Cookie Rojas delivered the winner with a sacrifice fly as Kansas City rallied for two runs in the eighth inning to defeat Texas. Al Fitzmorris scattered eight hits in going the distance to win his 16th game against 11 losses.

Indians 7, Brewers 6

Oscar Gamble's two-run pinch single with one out in the ninth inning gave Cleveland a victory over Milwaukee. Charlie Spikes and George Hendrick each homered for the Indians while George Scott hit a pair of homers for the Brewers, boosting his total to 33.

Angels 3, White Sox 0

Pinch-hitter Adrian Garrett blasted a three-run homer in the 16th inning to lift California over Chicago. Frank Tanana worked the first 13 innings for the Angels, allowing only six hits and striking out 13 to raise his major league leading total to 265.

Pirates Clinch NL East Flag

Bucs Credit Their Pitching

By UPI

In a baseball season of many surprises, the Pittsburgh Pirates had a dilly up their sleeves.

They think the decisive factor in their National League Eastern Division title victory was their pitching. That's right, that much-maligned pitching which was supposed to be their Achilles heel. What's more, Manager Danny Ozark of the Philadelphia Phillies tends to agree.

"We have more pitching depth than in other years," said Al Oliver Monday night after the Pirates clinched their fifth title in six years with an 11-3 victory over the Phillies. "After everyone downgraded our staff, pitching, I think, won it for us in the end."

Ozark agreed with Oliver that pitching could be decisive for the Pirates against the Cincinnati Reds in the NL playoffs. "Pitching could give the Pirates the edge," said Ozark, "although Cincinnati has the edge in defense and speed."

"I'm as disappointed in losing as Danny Murtaugh is happy in winning," Ozark continued. "I've never won and he has. Someday I'd like to experience that feeling. I hope it's next year."

"Give the Phillies credit—they have a great team," said Willie Stargell who was on base five times and drove in two runs in the title-clincher. "But when the Pirates put it all together, we're something else. We weren't about to fold no matter how gloomy it was for us back in August when we lost all those games on the road."

Richie Zisk and Dave Parker each knocked in four runs and Stargell scored four as the Pirates hammered Tom Underwood and six successors for 15 hits. The Pirates took a 4-0 lead with three runs in the fourth and clinched the game with a five-run burst in the eighth.

Bruce Kison went five innings to raise his record to 12-11 for the Pirates while the loss was Underwood's 13th against 14 wins.

Montreal defeated St. Louis 8-5 after a 6-4 loss in 12 innings, Houston beat Cincinnati 5-1 and San Diego topped Los Angeles 6-5 in 11 innings in other NL games.

Cardinals 6-5, Expos 4-8

St. Louis won the opener, with Al Hrabosky picking up his 13th win, when Ted Simmons hit a two-run homer in the 12th. Woody Fryman was the loser. Jim Cox drove in three runs and Larry Bittner also had three hits to lead Montreal's 11-hit attack in the second game.

Astros 5, Reds 1

Cesar Cedeno hit a three-run homer and Cliff Johnson a two-run homer to account for all Houston's runs. Joe Niekro went eight innings to win his sixth game for the Astros while 15-game winner Jack Billingham took his 10th loss for the Reds.

Padres 6, Dodgers 5

Hector Torres homered off Dave Sells leading off the 11th inning to give San Diego its victory over Los Angeles. It was the fifth homer for Torres, who entered the game as a pinch-runner in the ninth.

Dorsett Learns

NEW YORK (UPI) —

Oklahoma's Sooners were on probation last year and thus were ineligible for ranking by UPI. This year Barry Switzer's forces seem determined to make up for lost time—just ask Tony Dorsett.

Dorsett, Pittsburgh's outstanding sophomore running back, is bidding for All-America honors and, before Saturday's game at Oklahoma, said he had "confidence...only good things can come from the clash" with the Sooners and their All-America running back, Joe Washington.

Wrong. Dorsett emerged with stats of 17 yards in 12 carries as Oklahoma thrashed then-15th ranked Pittsburgh 46-10 to easily maintain its No. 1 spot in the UPI coaches rankings. The Sooners, who have outscored their first two opponents 108-17 and now own the nation's longest major college winning streak with 22 in a row, pulled 35 of a possible 42 first place votes for 408 points and have been first in both weeks ratings have been taken and in the preseason.

Ohio State, which safely emerged unbeaten from its battle with Eastern power Penn State, 17-9, held second place, garnering six first place nods and 377 points. The Buckeyes' defense has performed brilliantly, not allowing a touchdown, but these two top teams won't meet unless Ohio State fails to go to the Rose Bowl for the fourth straight year.

Southern California, last year's champions thanks to a hectic bowl season, moved up one notch to third. The Trojans powered their way past Pac-8 rival Oregon State Friday night, 24-7, behind another 200-plus yards effort from junior running back Ricky Bell and received the remaining No. 1 vote and 333 points.

RAIDERS' TONY CLINE (R) CHASES BOB GRIESE

Raiders Off to a Good Start

MIAMI (UPI) — It could be that the year of the Oakland Raiders is finally upon us.

Every summer it seems like Oakland is projected into the Super Bowl and every fall, the Raiders lose their regular season opener, rally to win the AFC Western Division and then lose in the playoffs.

But Monday night, the Raiders finally broke a string of five opening-game losses by bumping the Miami Dolphins 31-21 and the Raiders hope this means there will be some changes when playoff times comes around too.

"It was a good game for us because we've been snakebit in our openers," said Raider Coach John Madden. "I'm glad we got off to a good start."

The big play of the night came on the kickoff after Miami had closed to 24-14 in the fourth quarter on a one-yard burst by Norm Bulaich.

Harold Hart, a 206-pound second-year back from Texas Southern, took the kickoff four yards deep in the end zone and seemed ready to down it.

"I wasn't really sure how far in the end zone I was," he explained. "Then Jess (Phillips, back in twin safety with Hart) signaled me out. I'm glad I went."

Hart, who claims "I'm not a 100-yard dash man," sprinted straight up the middle of a split Miami special team, veered to the left and raced the 102 yards untouched.

Madden said that what he said when Hart hesitated couldn't be printed in a newspaper.

"Harold was a little undecided," Madden explained. "He thought he had better get back and then decided to go and he made a good one out of it."

Oakland's other hero was Pete Banaszak, a 10-year veteran from the University of Miami. Replacing Marv Hubbard, who was injured early in the game, Banaszak led Raider rushers with 74 yards on 19 carries and his two touchdown dives in the first half gave Oakland most of its commanding 17-7 halftime lead.

He went over the top from two and one yards out at the end of Raider drives.

"We saw films of when Miami played Minnesota and the defensive line takes a low charge," he said. "If you know that, then you just run to daylight, wherever you find it."

Much of the talk in the Oakland locker room was the establishment of a running game that had been suspect during the pre-season.

"I was happy to see us run as well as we did," said quarterback Ken Stabler. "It's good that we have our running game back because we have a helluva of line. We should be able to run, and it was good we did it in our opener against a fine team."

Miami Coach Don Shula blamed a lack of consistency, including a breakdown in kickoff coverage on Hart's return, for the loss.

"We played poorly at times both offensively and defensively," Shula said. "And then when we had an opportunity to catch them, we had a breakdown in kickoff coverage. You can't play that way and beat a team like the Oakland Raiders."

Banaszak's two scores came on the end of 38 and 61-yard drives in the first two quarters. The first drive started when defensive end Tony Cline recovered Don Nottingham's fumble on the Miami 38. The second drive featured a series of short passes from Stabler to his backs and tight ends.

Later in the second period, George Blanda hit a 25-yard field goal, making it 17-0.

Finally, late in the second quarter, the Dolphins scored after a 74-yard, nine-play drive capped by a four-yard sweep by Mercury Morris.

The Raiders roared back on a drive keyed by 15 and 22-yard screen passes by Stabler to Hart and Phillips and climaxed by a one-yard burst by Mark van Eeghen.

Miami fought back with a 15-play drive from the Dolphin 20 leading to a one-yard score by Bulaich. But then came Hart's 102-yard kickoff return and the Dolphins were all but out of it.

They scored again on a one-yarder by Morris at the end of a penalty-aided 32-yard march set up when Randy Crowder recovered a van Eeghen fumble, but it was too late.

Option Rule Remains Obstacle

CHICAGO (UPI) — Representatives of National Football League players and owners met again today to try to agree on a contract settlement which owner representative Sarge Karch estimated would cost "in the area of $30 million" in the next five years.

Karch, leading the management bargaining team, said the players had neither accepted nor rejected the management offer of improved pensions and salary minimums, changes in option rules, and other benefits.

Instead in five hours of sometimes heated discussion, Karch said, the owners offered clarifications of their proposals, in some cases satisfying the players and in some cases drawing objections.

Although neither side would comment, it appeared that the option rule remained a major obstacle to a settlement. Federal conciliator William J. Usery, it was known, told the groups they were "miles and miles apart."

It also was known that the players suggested bringing in an outside arbitrator and the owners objected. The owners, Karch said, believed that their memorandum which led to Monday's meeting specified that after as many as three days of bargaining, the player negotiators were obligated to submit the contract proposal for a vote.

"Nothing substantive has come out of this meeting except further clarifications," player association president Kermit Alexander said. "We plan to discuss this more in the optimistic hope of working toward some kind of settlement."

Ed Garvey, executive director of the players association, said Usery asked "both sides to try to come back in a good frame of mind, and I don't think anybody wants to say anything that would be inflammatory to the hope of getting a settlement Tuesday."

Karch said he hoped there had been "some progress." "I think they want to have everything they can get," he said. "They'd like to get the moon. Their major objection is that they don't believe we've given them everything they want and of course we can't do that."

"We believe that new money is going to have to come from a long term agreement which brings stability to the sport and regaining of health."

Under terms of the memorandum, under which the strike of five teams ended last week, players were to receive a contract proposal on which to vote on Sept. 25. They would complete voting by Sept. 30 and the result would be announced Oct. 2.

NFL 'Crying Wolf' on No-Shows

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An exasperated Congressman Torbert Macdonald, a Harvard graduate of Irish descent, needed Yiddish vernacular to describe pro football's opposition to his sports anti-blackout television bill.

"It's chutzpah at its highest," the Massachusetts Democrat said Monday of the resistance of the National Football League to his legislation to make permanent federal television of pro sports events sold out in advance. In the Ivy League, chutzpah means unmitigated gall.

Macdonald is chairman of a House Commerce subcommittee which is conducting four days of hearings on extending indefinitely the anti-blackout bill for football, basketball, baseball and hockey enacted temporarily for three seasons in 1973.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Don V. Ruck, an executive of the National Hockey League, were to give their views on Macdonald's measure today but only a light workout was anticipated for them compared to what faces NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle on his appearance Thursday.

The requirement that pro team owners allow local televising of sold-out home games has had little impact on baseball, basketball and hockey except during the World Series and playoffs. But Rozelle and the football owners prior to enactment of the law barred televising of any home games whatever the attendance.

Macdonald took issue with the NFL's complaints that the lifting of the blackouts have led to an increase in no-shows — ticket buyers who stay home to watch in their living rooms rather than go to the stadium.

He took issue with the NFL stand in questioning two lead-off witnesses endorsing continuation of the blackout ban — Richard E. Wiley, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, and John A. Schneider, president of CBS Broadcast Group.

The former Harvard football captain noted that the new Seattle expansion team has sold out its stadium completely for next year "even without knowing who the coach or the players will be."

"I think they're crying wolf with frivolous claims of no-shows," he said of pro football's complaints.

Pointing out that NFL teams have been paid for the tickets by stay-at-home customers and make no refunds, Macdonald declared: "I don't see what business it is of the football owners what the customer does with his ticket...whether he eats it, gives it away or sells it. He's paid for it and they're sold out."

The law requiring a team to allow home game television only applies if the full seating capacity of the stadium is sold out 72 hours in advance of kickoff. "I'm not going to shed tears for the NFL," the congressman observed.

Namath 'Questionable' For Kansas City Game

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y. (UPI)—Quarterback Joe Namath developed a swollen right knee during Sunday's game at Buffalo and the New York Jets listed him Monday as questionable for next Sunday's game against Kansas City.

X-rays proved negative and Namath's availability was placed on a daily wait and see basis. He isn't expected to practice today and likely will sit out Wednesday's session as well.

There wasn't any specific play in the 42-14 loss against the Bills on which Namath was hurt, and a club spokesman said this condition wasn't unusual for the fragile quarterback, who has a history of knee trouble.

Also listed as questionable for the Kansas City game was left guard Randy Rasmussen, who left Sunday's game in the first quarter with rib troubles. X-rays were negative but his ribs are bruised.

Rozelle Says Teams Risked Forfeits

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — If any National Football League team had refused to play its scheduled game over the weekend, the game would have been forfeited, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Sunday.

Addressing a news conference here prior to the Philadelphia Eagles-New York Giants game, Rozelle said the so-called "Rozelle Rule" is "subject to modification" but added it was "totally necessary in sports to have competition."

He said if last week's players strike by five teams had continued into Sunday, the teams that did not show up would have forfeited.

Rozelle denied that the NFL was engaged in "union busting" and said, "There is definitely a place for a union. There always will be. The players need someone to negotiate for fringe benefits."

According to the commissioner, the league received about 50 letters from fans and "the general tone was that they were turned off by the actions of the players."

He said the letter writers threatened to stop buying tickets and to start watching games on television.

Released In Parents' Custody

TOWN OF ULSTER
A 19-year-old Kingston youth was released in his parents' custody pending a court appearance after allegedly leading Town of Ulster police on a high speed chase through Kingston that ended when he rolled his car over on Delaware Avenue.

Constables on patrol spotted a car traveling down Route 9W late Sunday night at an apparent high rate of speed and gave chase, following the car at speeds up to 90 miles per hour down Albany Avenue, Broadway, and Delaware Avenue, through stop signs and red lights, until the accident occurred.

Driver of the car, said police, was Frank Fabbie, 19, of 20 Crane Street, Kingston. He was arrested for possession of stolen property, the car, driving while intoxicated; reckless driving; and eight vehicle and traffic violations.

Arraigned before Esopus Justice Robert Jordan, Fabbie was released in his parents' custody.

Plan for Mental Hygiene Announced

ALBANY (UPI) — Gov. Hugh L. Carey has announced a plan to revamp the Department of Mental Hygiene to make it more responsive to the needs of its 143,000 patients.

The governor also announced a "major talent search," suggesting that the reorganization may eventually mean the replacement of some top level department administrators.

The talent search will be directed by Arthur Krim, chairman of the board of United Artists Corp., and Thomas J. Watson Jr., former chairman of IBM.

Initially, however, the plan, as it was outlined at a news conference Monday, involves the reshuffling of only 59 positions from the central Albany office to regional slots within the department. The agency employs a total of 62,000 statewide.

The reorganization also calls for a renewed emphasis on efforts to move institutionalized patients into community based programs — an expressed goal of the department for several years.

The governor suggested that several Republican appointees of the Mental Hygiene Council should resign. The council is the senior advisory council to the commissioner.

He said the council "will be reconstituted as soon as possible as a body that represents concerned and involved parents, professionals, clients and citizen groups."

Four GOP appointees singled out by Carey during a news conference for possible replacement were:

• Richard Dunham, an aide to Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller who has been suggested as new chairman of the Federal Power Commission.

• Ronald Maiorana, press secretary to Rockefeller when he was governor, and now public relations chief for special state prosecutor Maurice Nadjari.

• John J. Gilhooley of Brooklyn, president of Transport of New Jersey.

• Richard Rosenbaum, the state GOP party chairman.

Members of the council are paid $1,500 a year plus expenses and meet 10 times a year.

Carey noted that "while improving efficiency, the reorganization (of the department) is not expected to require additional funds."

The governor also emphasized that there were "not presently" any plans under consideration for the merger or consolidation of existing facilities.

The major features of the plan, which was announced jointly by Carey and Mental Hygiene Commissioner Lawrence C. Kolb, include:

• Creation of an Office of Social Rehabilitation to direct efforts to move persons into community-based programs — a move which has been underway in the department for the last few years.

• Setting up a Division of Internal Management to aid in the development of plans, evaluating operations and allocating resources.

• Reduction of the central staff and an increase in regional field staffs "to enable the department to respond more effectively to area needs."

BCI Probers Recover Money

EAST KINGSTON
A probe by Hurley State Police BCI investigators has resulted in the recovery of more than $1,600 of $2,400 taken in an East Kingston burglary last Thursday and the arrest of three teenagers in connection with the theft.

Investigators said that while two of the teenagers stood watch outside, the third entered the bedroom of 91-year-old Joseph Nagy and made off with two wallets containing $2,400 in cash. Nagy was in another room at the time, police explained.

The three teenagers were arrested over the weekend and were charged with second degree burglary. The three were ages 15, 16 and 17. The two older youths were not identified because of their eligibility for youthful offender status, police said. The juvenile will be petitioned into family court.

Of the money taken, $1,660 has been recovered, according to authorities.

Meanwhile, in other area police matters: Ulster County Sheriff's Department detectives arrested Leopoldo Fernandez, 49, of Mamaroneck on Monday on a charge of criminal possession of a weapon.

Deputies said detectives were patrolling in the Town of Rochester when they spotted Fernandez allegedly target practicing with a .22 caliber pistol in a wooded area.

Following arraignment, Fernandez was released pending further court action.

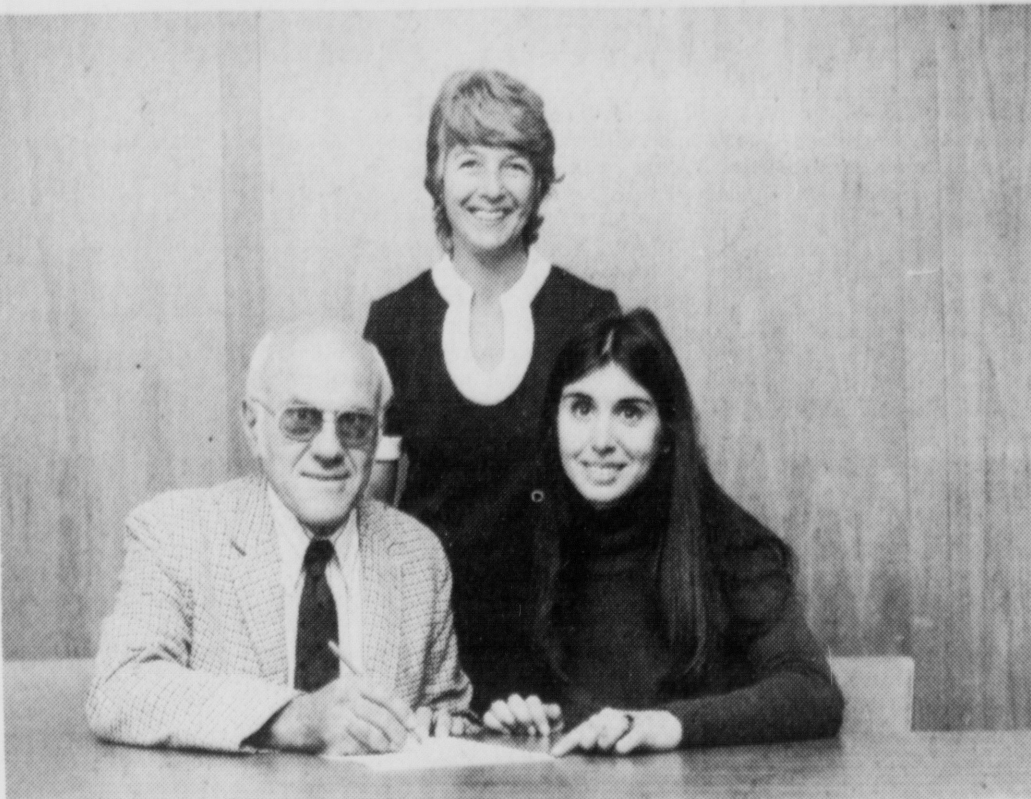

In Kingston, Erick C. Harrison, 25, of Lake Katrine Apartments was arrested Monday night by city police on a charge of menacing on the complaint of David Mentessi, 22, of Kingston.

Mentessi alleged that Harrison attempted to slash him with a knife on Broadway at about 8:15 p.m.

Harrison was jailed in lieu of $250 bail pending court action.

A routine road check of a pedestrian by state police resulted in the arrest Sunday of Peter Douglas, 32, of Brooklyn on charges of being an illegal alien and possession of a controlled substance (pills) in the seventh degree.

Police said Douglas, a native of Trinidad, is being held for immigration authorities.

Home Health Care Agreement

An agreement between Ulster County Department of Health and Ulster County Homemaker Service Inc., has been signed in order that the service may provide trained home health aides to give health care to patients in their homes under the supervision of a public health nurse. Further information will be available at a Human Services Day Program Wednesday from 9:45 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Kingston Municipal Auditorium. Shown are: Dr. Bartholomew J. Dutto (L-R) commissioner of health; Margaret Ostrander, supervisor of public health nurses and Rosemargaret Arceri, executive director of Homemaker Service. (Freeman photo)

How much should a funeral cost?

A funeral is no place for on-the-job training. So we're offering a booklet that talks openly about prices, optional services available, and the countless little details that could add to your grief—if you're not prepared for them.

The booklet doesn't recommend funeral homes...ours or anyone else's...but it will make you knowledgeable enough to plan wisely and help you from possibly spending more than you should, or may need to, for a funeral.

TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Ph.D.

VIRGIN: (Q.) The boys tease me and call me a square because I am the only virgin in my class. To get in good with some of the girls I told them I had a boy friend named Gene at my old school.

I kinda hinted to them that we had sex. That wasn't all a lie. There was a boy named Gene, but we did not have sex and he wasn't my boy friend. Please tell me what to do. I'm tired of being made fun of—Tormented in Texas.

(A.) I doubt that you are the only virgin in your class. Even if you are, it is much better to be teased for being one than to be talked about for not being one. No girl has to go around telling people she is a virgin or a nonvirgin. What she is not their business, and by not talking about it she saves herself a lot of flak. Stop talking about it now, and when anyone else mentions it treat it lightly. Eventually the talk will die out.

WEDDING?: (Q.) I am very much in love with Jim. He tells me he loves me and I believe him. A little while ago he asked me to marry him. I said yes so we set a date for next spring. Our parents know about our plans. Do you think I should wait a while or go on with the wedding plans? I am 16 and Jim is 19.—Love in Louisiana.

(A.) In the spring you may be 17, or you still may be 16. You don't say. Either way, I feel that you are in too big a hurry. Also, I believe that if you had been SURE you wouldn't have written to me. Wait till you are not only sure but VERY sure.

South decided against this play because of trumps did break 4-1 there would be a lot of problems in the play in any event. In fact against a 3-2 break there would be potential trouble if the winner of the second trump led the suit back.

After all this consideration, South played his king of spades. When both opponents followed he claimed the balance explaining that he would never lead a trump and that whoever held the queen could take a trick with it when he chose.

Egypt Signs Document . . . Initials From Israel

Jackie On The Job

For the first time since she earned $56.75 per week in 1952 as a cameragirl for the old Washington Times-Herald, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, 46, has a job. She is now a consulting editor for The Viking Press Inc. book publisher in New York City. On her first day in the office Monday, Thomas H. Guinzburg, president of Viking, introduced her to the staff and arranged for her to be photographed in a book-lined conference room. Commenting on Jackie joining the Viking staff, Guinzburg observed, "One is not unkind of the range of contacts the lady has." (UPI)

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI)—Egypt signed the final document of the new Middle East peace pact today, but Israel refused to do more than initial the protocol until assured of an American presence in the Sinai Desert.

A U.N. spokesman said Egypt signed the protocol at dawn, leaving Israel's signing as the only step left in negotiations initiated by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger last March.

Israel would only initial the document implementing the accord, refusing to sign until the U.S. Congress approves a provision to send up to 200 American volunteers to the Sinai Desert.

Finnish Gen. Ensio Siilasvuo, the U.N. chairman at the two-week military negotiations, said he hoped the Israeli decision would "not materially affect the agreement."

A U.N. spokesman said Israeli and Egyptian military negotiators agreed Monday night on the final details implementing the military disengagement accord.

"The military working group completed its task on Sept. 22nd when full agreement was reached on all items on its agenda," the spokesman said.

The agreement came at the end of 15 hours of nonstop talks between Israeli and Egyptian military groups in Geneva's lakeside Palais des Nations conference hall.

Maj. Gen. Herzl Shafir, a member of the Israeli delegation, carried a sheaf of papers early this morning from the ornate, frescoed conference room at the end of the last round of talks.

"We need four or five hours to get them printed," he told waiting reporters.

The Israeli government agreed Sunday to initial the protocol but refused to sign the document until the U.S. Congress approves a provision to send American volunteers to the Sinai Desert.

The interim peace accord, worked out by Kissinger during his 10th Middle East peace mission, provides for sending up to 200 American civilians to the Sinai to run a string of electronic surveillance stations.

Conference sources said a deadlock over Israel's refusal to sign the protocol delayed completion of the final round of negotiations.

The sources said Egyptian negotiators demanded concessions from the Israelis in exchange for agreeing on the two-step signing arrangement.

The agreement, signed Sept. 4 in Geneva, provided for the implementation negotiations to wind up Sunday night with the protocol signed the next day.

The peace accord calls for substantial Israeli withdrawals in the Sinai, the expansion of the U.N. buffer zone and the deployment of American technicians between the opposing armies.

The Israelis would abandon the strategic Gidi and Mitla mountain passes as well as the Abu Rudeis oil fields. The Americans would operate three manned and three unmanned warning stations in the buffer zone.

Kissinger arranged an initial Israeli-Egyptian disengagement agreement in early 1974. He traveled to the region last March in an attempt to work out a new pact but the talks broke down with each side blaming the other.

Gromyko Dusts Off N-Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko followed Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to the General Assembly today, dusting off the Kremlin's perennial plan for a total ban on nuclear weapons.

Kissinger scheduled a break in his behind-the-scenes talks with visiting diplomats to hear his superpower counterpart address the assembly's 30th annual debate.

The secretary of state spoke at the opening of the debate

Monday, calling for an informal Middle East conference to plan the next major Arab-Israeli peace effort.

Gromyko, the Soviet Union's top diplomat for 18 years, was the featured speaker for this morning's session of the three-week assembly debate.

British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan and Japanese Foreign Minister Kiichi Miyazawa were the leading diplomats on the afternoon speakers' list.

Gray-haired, 66-year-old Gromyko, once nicknamed the boy wonder of Soviet diplomacy, has been pushing the Kremlin's weapons ban proposal year-in and year-out.

Western diplomats generally shrugged off the plan as a public relations gimmick that appears important on the surface but has little real substance.

The diplomats complained the Kremlin has failed to make a provision for on-site inspections to make sure explosions are for peaceful rather than warlike purposes.

The United States has insisted at all disarmament talks on impartial on-the-spot inspection, but the Soviet Union has wanted inspection left to the country conducting tests.

Canadian External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen said Kissinger's Middle East proposal could help in resuming the full-scale Arab-Israeli peace conference in Geneva.

Jordanian Ambassador Abdul Hamid Sharaf said the talks would recognize that "any step taken so far in the Middle East will be followed by a series of other steps to achieve a total solution."

In addition to the Middle East plan, Kissinger called for a conference aimed at improving relations between North and South Korea. The United States, China and the two Koreas would attend the talks.

Yugoslav Foreign Minister Milos Minic grabbed Kissinger's hand outside the Assembly Hall and told him: "I congratulate you on a very moderate statement — very well-balanced."

'The Word Filtered Down'

NEW YORK (UPI)—Aides in Richard Nixon's White House were "shunned and sidelined" if their consciences wouldn't let them indulge in unethical conduct, according to Watergate wife Maureen Dean.

Her husband is John W.

Dean III, who as White House counsel helped engineer the Watergate cover-up and as a committee and grand jury witness helped trigger Nixon's downfall. He pleaded guilty to conspiracy and served 4½ months of a 1 to 4 year sentence.

Mrs. Dean said in a Redbook magazine article published Monday that "loyalty and devotion" to the President was rewarded by such things as flights on the presidential plane or use of limousines.

"On the other hand, when a person refused or even hesitated to do something, for whatever reason — his own ethical standards, his conscience or his better judgment — he would increasingly be shunned and sidelined," Mrs. Dean said. "The word quickly filtered down if a staff member would not play 'hard ball.'"

"Association with him might taint others, so he would find himself eating alone in the White House mess. He might be moved to a smaller office, and his staff would be trimmed."

'Privilege Threatened'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Former President Nixon's lawyers say executive privilege is something to be guarded jealously, and therefore he will neither reveal his role in setting up the White House "plumbers" nor accept federal ownership of his papers and tape recordings.

The argument was prepared for presentation later today in separate U.S. District Court hearings.

In both cases lawyers Herbert Miller and William Hundley argue the presidential right to confidentiality was threatened.

"Unless we jealously guard this privilege," said Hundley, opposing a deposition in the plumbers' suit, "the office of the presidency is not going to have the unfettered advice necessary to conduct that office."

The suit was bought against Nixon, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and other administration officials by former National Security Council aide Morton Halperin, one of more than a dozen people whose phones were tapped in hopes of plugging leaks of classified information. His lawyer, John H.F. Shattuck, said:

"Mr. Nixon was one of the principal — if not the principal — moving forces behind the taps. He has twice publicly taken responsibility for them . . . He received periodic and sometimes daily reports . . .

"He knew and directed who else got the information, he gave orders on how it was to be used, and he gave orders at the White House to lie to the press, the public and federal courts that the wiretaps never took place."

Before a three-judge tribunal called for constitutional questions, Nixon's lawyer, Herbert Miller, argued that Congress, in taking public custody of the 42 million pages of Nixon papers and 888 reels of White House tapes, exposes Nixon's "innermost thoughts" in the White House to public view.
